IN LOCAL THEATERS.

At the Frothingham tonight Jehn J. McNally's very funny farce, "A Country Sport," with the very popular comedian, Peter F. Dalley, as the shiring star of the company, will be given. Mr. Dalley's name carries with it the promise of a good time and the fame he achieved by his first starring tour, inaugurated about a year ago, occasioned little surprise to the many who have observed his rapid rise in the have observed his rapid rise in the realm of comedy. His exuberance never deserts him and in "A Country never deserts him and in "A Country Sport" he has found a vehicle for the display of his effervescence which would probably suit no other actor, but which in the hands of Dailey at once becomes a comedy gem. The superb supporting company includes jolly May Irwin, funny John Sparks, captivating Andrew Mack and irresistible Ada Lewis. There are also in the cast such well knowr names as Harry H. Morse, Maud Harris, Marie Miller, J. F. Callahan and Freda Depew, in addition to the large collection of dancers and singers employed in the principal

The great spectacular play of "Fan-tasma," which drew such large audi-ences here before, will again be pro-duced at the Academy of Music next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Since last here the play has, however, been completely changed and remodeled, so that it is now called the "New Fantasthat it is now called the "New Fantasma." The old spectacle was the grandest ever produced here, and it is now even more gorgeous. Not only is the ingenuity manifested little short of marvelous, but the scenery and the groupings are of the highest order of stage art; and, from what is said by the press of the metropolitan cities, it is probable that the "New Fantasma," as it stands, is one of the cleverest and greatest productions that America has greatest productions that America has ever seen.

At the Academy of Music Wednesday night "A Night at the Circus" will hold sway. The fact that this play has had the endorsement of a run at the New York Park theater may be safely taken as a guarantee that in selecting "A Night at the Circus" for the amuse-Might at the Circus" for the amuse-ment of his patrons, Manager Burgun-der has made no mistake. The play is a farce-comedy, but it is a decided advance on the ordinary run of that class of plays. Miss Nellie McHenry, a favorite with the theater-going pub-lic, and once the bright particular star of Salebury's Tranhadows is in the case. of Salsbury's Troubadours is in the cast too, and just as full of her old time vivacity and rollicking humor as ever, in a role that gives her every oppor-tunity for the display of her remark-able versatility.

Today will be the last opportunity for Scrantonians to see that fine musi-cal comedy, "A Liberty Bell," and the living pictures at Davis' theater.

Next week Manager Davis will pre sent to the patrons of his Linden street theatre, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," as produced by the Markoe company, which is headed by Miss Daisey Markoe. It is an aggregation of players and gives a superb rendition of that time honored drama which has cut such an important figure in the history of our times.

Manager Burgunder has billed Edward Harrigan and company for performances at the Academy of Music on Nov. 6 and 7. On the first night Mr. Harrigan will produce "Reilly and the 400," and on the second "Cordelia's Aspirations.'

"Young Mrs. Winthrop," the great Madison Square theater success, will be produced at the Academy of Music next Saturday evening, Nov. 3, by a company of artists among which are Robert McWade, Errol Dunbar, Collin Kemper, Mrs. Annie Mortimer and Lansing Rowan. This is the best company that ever played the comedy in this city.

CASEY'S INVENTIVE GENIUS.

Hyde Park Man Comes to the Front with a Street Car Fender.

James H. Casey, of 330 Twentieth street, on the West Side, called at The Tribune office yesterday and had with him a model of a street car fender, of which he is the patentee. He sent another model to Washington a few days ago and is expecting letters patent on his invention to arrive within a week his invention to arrive within a week. The fender will be four feet wide and will project 3 feet, 6 inches. It will be fastened to the car three inches from the rail, and is guaranteed to either pick up objects on the track or shove them to one side out of danger,

Mr. Casey has not interested any-body as yet with him in the enterprise. The model was made by George Mackereth, a blacksmith living near the Oxford shaft, and when the invention is patented, a full sized fender will be attached to one of the street cars and given a trial.

The model has all the appearance of being a very practical one, the arrangement is simple, and looks as if it might

MASS MEETING AT TAYLOR

Splendid Reception Given to Ex-Lieutenant Governor Davies.

FIREWORKS, MUSIC, ORATORY

Weber's Rink Not Able to Make Room for More Than Half Who Wanted to Hear the Speakers-Fifteen Hundred People Present.

The flow of enthusiasm at the Repub lican mass meeting in Taylor last night has not been outdone in this campaign. The borough was brilliant with fireworks and the streets echoed and reechoed with rousing cheers.

The Republican club headed by the Taylor band met the speakers on their arrival at the Jersey Central depot at 7.30 and escorted them to Weber's rink, where an audience had assembled that would have packed two rinks. Those who could not gain admittance surged shoulder above shoulder in the street and endeavored to catch the words of the speakers. Inside the audience was orderly, but when applause was in order the greeting manifested itself with a vociferousness that told of the party patriotism of the citizens of Taylor. Harry J. Cooper was chairman of the meeting. On the stage besides Candl-dates Clemons, Pryor, Judge Archbald, Huester, Grover, Hopkins, Scranton, Thomas, Jones, Vaughan and Davies were the following prominent Republicans of Taylor: Dr. E. E. Weston, president of the borough council Dr. J. S. Porteus, John W. Reese, J. E. Watking and H. J. Harris.

The walls of the hall were pla-carded with mottoes such as, "Vote the Republican ticket straight, straight Don's skip the smallest county office." "The Canadian laborer gets $6 a month, whose mines will work?" The stage was decorated with the Stars and Stripes, and in the center the picture of Congressman Scranton beamed down between the pictures of General Hastings and Candidate Walter Lyon. Colborn Was Eloquent.

Chairman Cooper in a brief speech bespoke the kind attention of the audience for the first speaker, Attorney A. J. Colborn. The eloquence of Mr. Colborn was never heard to better advantage. He attacked the specious promises of the Democratic party and in glittering language tore asunder the free trade fallacies that are taught and which are being carried out little by little. He said in part:

This is truly a Republican year. It is a year in which the great mistake that has been committed will be rectified, and under the leadership of Gen-eral Hastings, the gallant hero of the Conemaugh, we will go on to victory. This is a campaign in which the workingman is thinking; he is thinking of the smokeless stacks of crippled indus-tries, he is thinking when he sees his family begging for bread."

At this point in Mr. Colborn's address some one from the outside thrust his arm through the window. The speaker said, "That's only some Democrat in search of light; we will give them all the light they want." The humor of this ready repartee created applause that did not subside for two minutes. Resuming the thread of his discourse, Mr. Colborn pictured in eloquent lan-guage the destitution of the country and the people under eighteen months of Democratic misrule. "The Wilson bill, the author of all the "The Wilson bill, the author of all the mischief, is now in force," he said, "the bill which a Democratic president branded as a bill of perfidy and dishonor. The Democrats cry peace, and gives the excursionist a superby view of the Hudson river from Cornpeace, but where can we find peace? "Labor is king, the mightiest mon-arch that ever ruled on the face of the earth. Give labor employment and it will level mountains and build upon the face of the country thriving cities with thousands and thousands of happy homes. Protection protects our industries and gives labor a chance."

Mr. Colborn referred to the statement of Mr. Merrifield, the Democratic candidate for congress, who assumes that he is a protection Democrat. "My friends," said the speaker, "if Mr. Merrifield gets to the halls of congress, although he may think he can dance the good old protection waitz, when Billy Wilson fiddles Mr. Merri-when Billy Wilson inddles Mr. Merri-field will dance to the tune of the south-ern plantation jig." Mr. Colborn con-cluded with words of praise to all the candidates of the Republican ticket. Ex-Lleutenant Governor William T.

Davies, of Towanda, was the next speaker. Mr. Davies said that his county excelled all others he had visited in the number of ladies who attend public gatherings, but their presence. however, excludes the men who at the ballot box will determine who shall be the rulers.

He said that he cast his first vote for John C. Fremont and has followed the fortunes of Republicanism through victory and defeat ever since, and its record has been true to the best inter-est of the country and it has been admitted by the enemy. It stood by the flag in distress and was with it in all trials, and on the day of reconstruc-tion it was equal to the emergency. In its financial management of the country the Republican party has been the wonder and admiration of the world.

Whatever the future of the party may be its past is safe, but the life of a po-litical organization depends on the fu-ture. The Republican party in the past in making its pledges true and ful-filling its principles has a record made that the future will take care of. It hews to the line and lets the chips fall where they may.

When James G. Blaine in 1888 came down from the Pine Tree state and de-livered an address at Boston, he pictured a prophecy that the day would come when the country would see it-self controlled by the Southern Dem-ocracy, assisted by the northern Demo-crats of New York city, and the breath of free trade would sweep over the land. Mr. Blaine died the year that saw the fulfillment of his prophecy.

We Have Been Fortunate. Mr. Davies said that from what he had heard this valley has not felt the effect of hard times to the extent that other places have undergone. He told of a scene that came before his notice last winter in Philadelphia. One morning he observed a line of men at the desk of the hotel waiting to hear if there was any employment around the hotel at which they might be able to earn a dollar to bring home bread to their starving families. This was in a district of Philadelphia which had been one of the busiest in the country, hum-ming with the voice of industry. These men were willing to work but there was none to give them. Destitution was rampant all over the land, and the Democratic party charged it to the McKinley bill. This is an insult to Mckiniey bill. This is an insuit to everybody's intelligence.

The people now want to undo the evil that they blindly permitted to occur, and a vote for Joseph A. Scranton means one step in the right direction. It may mean more than a step because the next congress will be close and one the next congress will be close and one the next congress will be close and one vote may control it. In concluding his very eloquent speech Mr. Davies beseeched his hearers to repudiate with a vengeance the cowardly onslaughts that the opposition is making against certain candidates.

YOU PAY NO MIDDLE PROFIT Congressman Scranton was next in-troduced. He addresed his hearers as fellow protectionists and assured them WE BUY OF PACKERS. fellow protectionists and assured them that in no campaign through which he passed was the prospect of victory so bright as at present. The great outpouring of the citizens of Taylor is an index of victory. He referred to the magnificent majority registered by Lackawanna county last February given to the peerless Republican, Galusha A. Grow, and said that the issues now are the same as then as far as the policy of protectiopn.

LOOKING FORWARD TO 1896

Attorney W. Gaylord Thomas followed Mr. Scranton in a telling speech, well diversified with pleasing anecdote. Candidate John R. Jones was the last speaker and simply reiterated the pledge to conduct the office of district attorney, if elected, with fairness, ins-Scranton May Have Christian Endeavor Convention in Two Years.
